EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE. SULLIVAN'S ISLAND, Moultrie House, March 4th, 1861.

DEAR WILSON: -- I now write in the absence of the greater portion of our Company, who have been detailed as Picket Guard, at the Eastern point of the Island. They left here on Friday last, with three day's rations and will return to-day. The remainder of us, consisting of 20 or 80 persons, who were performing guard duty here, at the time, were directed to remain, and under the charge of Lieut. WHITE to protect the Quarters until the return of the Company. We have constant communication with our comrades, and learn that they are very comfortably situated, being provided with good tents, and find the duties of the Camp less onorous than whilst here.

It is very likely that we will be ordered to Morris Island in a few days. Col. Gregg, with six companies of the Regiment is now stationed there, and he is very auxious that his Command should be again re-united. We are so very pleasantly situated here, that we anticipate anything else than benefit from the change and would bid adieu to our present quarters, with considerable reluctance. Obedience, however, is the first duty of the soldier, and we will cheerfully respond to the commands of our superiors. The Quarters on Morris and said to be more comfortable than we were at first led to suppose, and the troops are said to be very well satisfied. The water is bad, but arrangement will soon be made for obtaining a supply from the city. There is plenty of shade-quite a desideratum in the approaching hot season-and comfortable tentare being rapidly made for the supply of the whole Regiment.

Our Captain has receptly made application to the Adjutant and Inspector General for the improved e-arms, and obtained the comise of the Mississippi rifles as the best weapon at the disposal of the State. We are to be furnished with these as soon as beyone's can be made and attached to them. In the mean time, we have exchanged our former wor bless guns of the State manufacture for the smoothbore, United States muskets, and these, though not a very formidable weapon, are a decided improvement upon the others. Of these last, one half of them repeatedly missed fire, and to gether with the amunition, have often been ae ported as "worthless and inefficient" by those who have the matter in charge. It is certain ly the interest and duty of the State to furnish us with the best weapons. It is all that we ask-their proper use will rest with ourselves.

We have not yet received the new uniform which were ordered some time since for the Regiment, but are daily execuecting them .-The uniform will consist of a grey trock and pants, and will much to the appearance of the Regiment. The ordinary fatigue dress of the Abbeville Company, has been a stout woolen jacket which we had made for us in Charles ton. Our red flannel coats which we cherish the more highly from the fact of being made by fair fingers in Abbeville, and associated with our first entrance into the military life, we reserve for dress parade as d other extra occasions. They are yet in a good state of preservation, and will no doubt be kept by many ardent spirits in our ranks, as heir looms to inspire the patriotic arder of their descendents. A few trophies from Fort Sumter would perhaps answer the purpose better, but in the absence of these, the others will serve our turn.

As you may image, we are all politicians in Camp, and the State can furnish none who scan more closely, or dissenss more zealously the shifting phases of the political uspect. We have perhaps the same opportunities of form ing a correct opinion that you have, and perhaps even a greater interest in the result of our reflections-we are away from home and anxious to raturn. It is amusing to observe the diversity of opinion which prevails among our eager speculators. One takes counsel from his fears, and anticipates interminable strife and endless bloodshed; another, to whom per haps the "wish is the father of the thought," confidently predicts a speedy settlement of our troubles, and the discharge of our Regiment in a few weeks. This much seems to be probable, that if we are to have no war, our places will I e supplied by the Regulars, who are now rapidly enlisting. They are said to be enlisted at the rate of 50 per day, and will thus make up the desired complement.

We are generally in excellent health, and the most of us are much more robust than when we left home.

A few days since a handsome sword was pre sented by our Company to a young Cadet, CHISOLM, our drill master, as a token of their appreciation.

W. A. L.

Yours very truly,

LINCOLN'S INAUGURAL. The message of President Lincoln, says the Gnardian was much commented on yesterday. The yest majority, as far as we could hear, construed it as leading directly and speedily to war, Others, again, thought it a shade more hostile than Mr. Buchanan's message. A few said it meant no fight The Washington corrispendent of the Baltimore Sun, writing on the 1st instant, thus pred eted its character: "In Mr. Lincoln's inaugura" we shall have words that will favor peace and other words which may be interpreted as favoring coe-

This, in our opinion, is about its true import it means peace or coercian, either, it means be will be cannot to attempt is would be "irrational." Still, if his "masters" tell kim to do, he will do, and is ready to do, praying to God, nevertheless, to guard and guide us all, and beserling "the better angels of our nature" to touch our har-dened hearts with a softening chorus for the Northern Union. Unfortunately, the "better angeles down our way all attune our hearts to Southern symphonies and swell our souls to umubdued devotion to the glory of the South, please of independent. A large portion of the message is evidently meant for influence upon the border slave States. He holds the threat of war over them with one hand, and rule and souther them down with the other, hoping by emeror the other policy either to frighter or beguite them of their rights and independence. As a part of his programme, be expressed a readings to have a National he expresses a readiness to have a National Convention. This will concerns time; it will consider defay; it will stronger time to these down Virginia and North Capaline, that he Lincoln may awallow them up in many vistory. Execute are hastening on, and if President Lincolnucideres to his position, President Davis will to his and, perhaps in teaching a week, war will have begun in the contract of the message. Thetheren and Tonescola. The mesage have We'ld the distance of his aspector, if I make west it where; for it distinctly an-

one moment. of the message means what it says, it had dettersheepsedily followed by another calling $50,000,000 loan and an armed force, for these will be the only reliable instruments of its despotic design; and when they come, they will be greeted at our borders with the clash of arms and the din of battle; for when their spirit is tried, these are the sounds pleasing to the ear of a liberty loving people like those of the South.
